The rational apartment

The rational apartment is a prime example of our motto "rational - much more than a kitchen". In this design, the opening of the kitchen to the living area, something that rational has been practising for years, extends from the coat/bag storage module to the dining area and from the kitchen with utility room to the open-plan living area.

Nowadays, the focus is on rooms that are both flexible and multifunctional. As a result, contemporary furniture must embrace the principle of "form follows function" and time and again assume different functions.

Kitchen furniture is often no longer identifiable as such at first glance.

Thus, free-hanging pull-outs provide stylish storage within the coat/bag storage module, lift doors serve as a garage for the robot vacuum cleaner and framed drawers can be used as a table in the living area, at the same time as offering extra storage space.

After rational joined the COLORNETWORK®, the apartment is all about colour "No.3 give warmth!"

The high-quality pastel beige with warm grey components shows its modern character in combination with the very light chestnut wood decor.

The warm colour tone is timeless and can be combined time and again. The colour will remain attractive also in the future, thus creating sustainable values in interior design.

Modest in size but maximum in style

Caption dining area:

Light colours, like the natural chestnut wood decor, make rooms appear larger.

Caption: kitchen:

The distinguished-looking pastel beige with warm grey elements in combination with the light chestnut creates a cosy homeliness.

Caption: utility room:

The rational utility room is an excellent keeper of order. The washing machine and robot vacuum cleaner are hidden behind the kitchen's access door.

Caption: living area:

Living space and home office from a single source make for a harmoniously cohesive look.
